The Exodus

Historical Context: Refugees Arrival in Greece

Politics

- ▶ The Liberal Party favored and promoted the territorial expansion of Greece; while in power significant territorial gains during the Balkan Wars (1912-1913).
- ▶ The Popular Party takes power in 1920, opposing the war in Asia Minor. But soon it reversed policy...
- ▶ In the aftermath of the National Disaster, the burning of Smyrna, and the arrival of refugees the King was ousted, monarchy was abolished and the Second Hellenic Republic was proclaimed (1924-1935).
- ▶ Refugees are granted political rights upon arrival.

Economic Implications. Summary

Preliminary Evidence. Rural-based

- ▶ Educational (literacy) gap of refugees upon arrival (vis a vis natives in the countryside)
- ▶ Very quick catch-up [educational reform 1928-1932?], despite higher employment
- ▶ Eventually refugee villages and towns higher high-school completion [uprootedness]
- ▶ Descendants of Refugees are much more mobile than natives [uprootedness]

The Incomplete Integration

- ▶ Chapter 2.

- ▶ Songs, Politics, and Identity.

Motivation. History Matters. Why? How?

Historical Development. Mechanisms? => Culture

Historical "episodes"; slavery, epidemics, forced migrations, wars, climate shocks, technological revolutions, colonization, famines, coercion, border design, ethnic/religious mix, etc.

- ▶ Compelling evidence [reviews, Nunn (2014), Michalopoulos and Papaioannou (2017, 2021), Lowes (2022), Voth (2021)]

How Does History Stay Alive?. Culture

1. These events register in the collective memory, i.e., stories, songs, myths and legends.
2. The songs' themes are reproduced, cementing and perpetuating a group's identity even when the original material circumstances change.
3. Re-enforcing role of politics and culture

Bringing Music into our Inquiry

Ethnomusicologists Meet Data Geeks and Economists

Songs: a window into how peoples' collective memories are shaped by history and evolve intergenerationally.

- ▶ Bring Music (lyrics) into Economics Research.
 - ▶ analogy to Folklore (Michalopoulos and Xue (QJE 2021))
 - ▶ Music and songs chiefly important for people
- ▶ Songs (lyrics and music), Culture, and Political Economy
 - ▶ New research avenues

Refugee Identity and Culture

Songs as Depository of Cultural Attributes

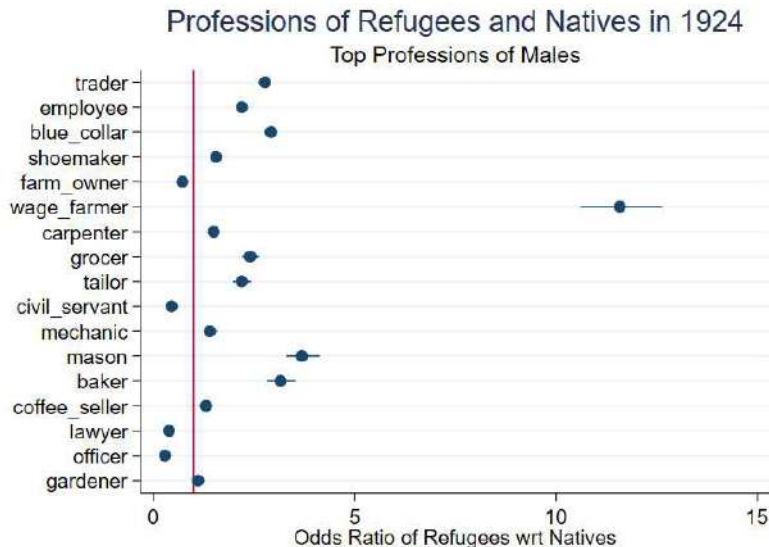

- ▶ The experience of forceful displacement and settling in a new environment, amidst adversity.

Trauma at a Group Level

- ▶ Immortalized in their songs cement an identity of a traumatized, marginalized group.
 - ▶ despite educational convergence, (rising incomes), and improvements in neighborhoods (urbanization)
 - ▶ behavior, attitudes, and preferences reflect an adversarial historical experience.
- ▶ Songs offer a unique opportunity to look at how group-level narratives and collective memories change as a result of extreme experiences.

Urban Refugees. Occupations Upon Arrival

Electoral Catalogue, Athens 1924

Urban Refugees, Jobs Upon Arrival in Athens, cont.

Refugees Take up Whatever Jobs Appear Available

- ▶ Little capital
- ▶ Immediate survival needs so..
- ▶ blue-collar workers, peddlers, wage farmers, etc
- ▶ Textile, apparel, tailors
- ▶ Under-represented among civil servants, land owners, police and army officers, and lawyers.

Refugees and the Birth a Music Genre - Rebetiko

- ▶ Rebetiko's origins are debated among Ethnomusicologists.
- ▶ But all agree refugees were instrumental in this new genre.

Greek Music and Refugees' Influence

Panagiotis Toundas. Smyrna School of Music

- ▶ Toundas: 1886–1942 was a Greek composer and lyricist of the early 20th century from Smyrna.
- ▶ In 1924 he became director of Odeon Records. He worked with all the major record labels including also directing Columbia records responsible for many recordings of the era.

Example. Refugees' in Greek Songs

Lyrics: The Refugee Girl, Tountas (1927)

Don't break my heart with your complaining, not, my light, for I ache at your pain, kindle a flame in my heart with thy sweet voice,
My little refugee, my little refugee, as you say your words.

Laugh, little refugee, forget your misfortune and we'll go to the old haunts once, to our beautiful Smyrna, in the garden of birds and there, sweet love, we'll live with kisses.

Stop crying, my love, stop crying and the time will come. We'll go again with joy to our beautiful country. Then, my bird, you and I will live together, and in kisses, all the past will be forgotten.

The Evolution of Greek Music after WWII

From Rebetiko to Laiko

- ▶ Rebetiko is influential but short-lived as it will transform into a new genre called Laiko "Popular" after the WWII.
- ▶ Stelios Kazantidis 1931-2001 is a prominent second-generation refugee born in Nea Ionia (one of the refugee settlements in Athens) emblematic of the transition from Rebetiko to Laiko.

Refugees in Laiko Song

Lyrics: Refugees on the Run, Kazatzidis, 1987

From the shores of Smyrna and from the courts of Pontus, we arrived uprooted in the slums. Refugees on the run, a life of injustice. Piled up in shacks, drowned by need. Refugees hunted, a life of injustice. I sing our woes, I suffer and hurt. Driven from our homes, in the bitter host country, and in blood soaked half our generation.

Modern Period. Hip Hop; Active Member

1996; Lyrics: Refugee

I have refugee marks in my forehead I look around again and everything seems foreign I look at the clouds and think of journeys but without light all the grey in my soul is the same. For even this earth I'm treading on it's not my fault they didn't teach me to love it. Where is that sweet home of mine that has the light engraved in the stone as if God has forgotten it forever. And I feel like a refugee here where I was born Like my ancestors. Motherland, motherland, though you never saw it, though it never embraced you, close your eyes to the blows and laugh it's a sacred cause they always tell us And to feel the light we must always be patient for a good future that will come. But I'm sick of them all, where is God, is he a refugee himself? And yet I exist I take courage and sing for all that I love without having it

Crowd-Sourced Big Data to the Rescue

ML Approach

- ▶ Scrape close to the universe of songs. titles, lyrics, lyricists, composers, singers, date of production, number of views.
 - ▶ 129,905 songs
 - ▶ 2,200 singers with at least 5 songs
 - ▶ 17% of singers are of refugee origin
 - ▶ 2,000 lyricists with at least 5 songs
 - ▶ 13% of lyricists are of refugee origin
- ▶ Still working on figuring out the refugee origin; reading biographies, interviews, etc

Song Production by Artists' Cohorts

Patterns

Crowd-Sourced Big Data to the Rescue. Challenges

Caveats

- ▶ Natural Language processes are not well developed in the Greek language yet.
 - ▶ We translate into English via the DeepL Translator API
- ▶ Metaphors, Greek idioms, slang are lost in translation
 - ▶ Poetry's big influence in Greek music is another (nice) challenge

From Songs and Lyrics to Concepts

Approach and Method

Steps

- ▶ Lemmatize
- ▶ Remove Stop Words
- ▶ Assign Songs to Concepts. How?

Classifying Songs - Content Analysis

Step 1. Identifying Content

- ▶ Use keywords and related words from knowledge graphs created by computer scientists
 - ▶ Conceptnet 5: semantic network created by the MIT Media Lab using crowdsourced resources (Wiktionary, DPpedia, WordNet, Open Mind Common Sense) to build a large commonsense knowledge base.
 - ▶ Look over the 50 most related words per concept.
 - ▶ Look at the top 15k concepts
- ▶ Example: Concepts related to presence: 'presence', 'absence', 'attendance', 'omnipresence', 'existence', 'ubiquity', 'nonexistence', 'appearance', 'involvement', 'demeanour', 'absent', 'participation', 'pervasiveness', 'appearing', 'graced', 'proximity', 'conspicuousness', 'absentia', 'stature', 'signage', 'preponderance', 'absentee'

Step 2. Predict Refugee Songs

- ▶ Apply shrinkage techniques to find out which concepts are most predictive of refugee songs.
 - ▶ Run Lasso regressions using as outcome an indicator identifying whether the artist involved in the song (lyricist or singer) is of refugee origin
 - ▶ Collect concepts that are picked across the top 1k, 2k, 3k, 4k, ...15k iteratively with and without decade of birth song production constants (accounting for trends)
- ▶ ML Algorithm
 - ▶ Lasso with data-dependent, theory-driven penalization Belloni et al (2012, 2016).
 - ▶ Currently exploring other machine learning algorithms, including random forests.

Exploring Dynamics in the Songs' Concepts

How differences between Natives' and Refugees' songs evolve?

- ▶ On average, refugee lineages sing different "tunes".
 - ▶ Are these differences persistent or converge as soon as the economics converge?
 - ▶ The rate at which songs' themes travel intergenerationally reflects (hard-to-measure) identity transmission
- ▶ For example, do "economics"-related images converge but the trauma persists?

Summary

- 1. Displaced Populations: do not integrate politically
 - ▶ Their allegiance lies with the political entrepreneur that enfranchised them as long as he is alive (Venizelos).
 - ▶ Once Venizelos dies (signs the Peace Treaty with Turkey), they veer towards the far-left, i.e., the Communist Party
 - ▶ Initial occupational differences may help explain this divergence.
 - ▶ Refugee lineages eventually overtake natives economically.
- 2. Refugee Identity in the Songs:
 - ▶ Replete with themes of hardship, injustice, pain, poverty, and, anger among others
 - ▶ Poverty-themes subside over time, but the focus on pain and injustice persists.
 - ▶ Parties with manifestos on similar themes gain a hearing among refugee lineages.
